

The Pallet

Hello ... Summer!

Does your pallet program contribute to your relaxation?

We have probably heard stories about stress injuries and bad health conditions caused by lack of rest. Old school thinkers read this kind of thing and say, "right!" Stress management really just means laziness! Get back to work! Others look at medical data and come to a different conclusion. Well, what does this have to do with pallet programs? The right pallet program administered by a competent, experienced, and well insured provider can relieve corporate stress and free a company to pursue their own purpose. A well run pallet program works great year round and let's you get needed rest.

Does Rest Help You Work?

Does productivity go down after eight hours? Can workers really do more by never taking a break? Do the best actually never rest?

Let's think about it. While true that sometimes lack of rest leads to somewhat creative thinking, mental fatigue can also lead to sloppy thought processes, forgetfulness, and general slowness. What usually takes 15 minutes can take an hour or more. And, mistakes that you would otherwise catch with an alert, rested mind slip by and cause further problems and loss of money.

True, sometimes rest just serves as an excuse for laziness. For responsible people, however, rest just helps keep them effective.
